PLATE 21

Sperati is known to have made "die" proofs in colour, as well as unused and used reproductions on genuine paper. Unused stamps with Official perforations through the centre "O.S." and "W.A." are genuine Official perforations on stamps from which Sperati has discharged the original design. The cliché is dated 24th May 1940.

Comparison must be made with a genuine stamp.

SPECIFIC TESTS

Sperati retouched his "cliché" and thus removed certain constant spots of colour that are found in the genuine (these are quite obvious in the genuine under a magnifying-glass). The constant flaws not found on the reproductions are:

- (i) Minute dot at foot between "W" and "E" of "WEST."
 (ii) Dot N.W. of lower right serif of "E" of "WEST."
 (iii) Dot in "U" of "AUSTRALIA."
 (iv) Dot to right of "U" and dot at top between the "U" and "S."
 (v) Dot (minute) between the legs of the "R."
 (vi) Minute dash above and between the "R" and "A."

The following are constant flaws in the Sperati:

- (vii) A defect in the top of the second "A" of "AUSTRALIA" (Plate 21).
 (viii) The ornaments over the centre circle look like spear-heads from the bottom spear-heads. On the right (just under the last "A" of "AUSTRALIA") is a colourless horizontal line that runs into the spear-head above.
 (x) A parallel line to (ix) cuts the left frame and coincides with the horizontal cross-piece of the £1 sign.
